Things we can't control:

→ Conventions are our friends

Conventional design of site elements doesn't result in a boring web site. In fact, conventions are very useful as they reduce the learning curve, the need to figure out how things work.

The screenshot shows the top navigation and gallery of a website. The header includes a logo for 'НАША КАРТА' (Our Map) with a coat of arms, a delivery service link 'Доставка блюд и продуктов: ДОСТАВКА', and buttons for 'Забронировать столик' (Reserve a table) and 'Заказать билеты онлайн' (Order tickets online). Social media icons for Facebook and Twitter are present, along with a search bar labeled 'Поиск по сайту' (Search on site) and an 'English' language selector.

The main navigation menu contains: Главная (Home), Рестораны (Restaurants), Фотогалерея (Photo Gallery), Новости (News), Проекты (Projects), and Контакты (Contacts).

The gallery section is titled 'ФОТОГАЛЕРЕЯ' and has filters for 'Все' (All), 'События' (Events), 'Интерьер' (Interior), and 'Блюда' (Dishes). Three images are displayed:

- A photograph of an outdoor pool area with lounge chairs and a wooden pergola.
- A photograph of a group of people performing on a stage with blue lighting and a large screen in the background.
- A photograph of a woman in a white bikini and a flowing red cape standing on a pier by a lake.

White space (negative space) creates organization and hierarchy

These elements are arranged with no consideration of the space within the layout.

The same elements as above are now grouped and the space has been more clearly defined and organized.

The organization of the space in the layout creates a natural hierarchy or sequence of importance by either relating or separating elements.

- Users don't read, they scan. Analyzing a web-page, users search for some fixed points or anchors which would guide them through the content of the page.

Implications of the F Pattern

The F pattern's implications for Web design are clear and show the importance of following the guidelines for writing for the Web instead of repurposing print content:

- Users won't read your text thoroughly in a word-by-word manner. Exhaustive reading is rare, especially when prospective customers are conducting their initial research to compile a shortlist of vendors. Yes, some people will read more, but most won't.
- The first two paragraphs must state the most important information. There's some hope that users will actually read this material, though they'll probably read more of the first paragraph than the second.
- Start subheads, paragraphs, and bullet points with information-carrying words that users will notice when scanning down the left side of your content in the final stem of their F-behavior. They'll read the third word on a line much less often than the first two words.

Which of these two lists is easier for you to scan?

List One:

- ▶ Subregional office for Central Africa
- ▶ Subregional office for East Africa
- ▶ Subregional office for West Africa
- ▶ Subregional office for North Africa
- ▶ Subregional office for Southern Africa
- ▶ Subregional office for Sahil Region

List Two:

- ▶ Central Africa - subregional office
- ▶ East Africa - subregional office
- ▶ West Africa - subregional office
- ▶ North Africa - subregional office
- ▶ Southern Africa - subregional office
- ▶ Sahil Region - subregional office
